Description

A REFUGE WITH PYRENEAN CHARM

✘ Located in the `Val d'Arán`, just 7 km from Baqueira, in an area of the Catalan Pyrenees where the woods, the snow-capped peaks in winter and the freshness of the green in summer are the true protagonists of the landscape. The Parador, in the style of the local architecture, rises up in the so-called House of D. Gaspar de Portolá, the discoverer of California. It has attic bedrooms, wood-lined beams and numerous conference rooms, among which the Salón Chimenea stands out. The friendly common rooms invite you to stay the night in an ideal setting for taking up outdoor activities. The cooking is influenced by the specialties of the region such as `olla aranesa` (stew), trout `a la llosa`, `civet de jabalí` (jugged wild boar) and the sweet `pescajus de Arties`.
